

Elizabeth Farnum

Soprano

Praised by the New York Times for her “honeyed tone”, award-winning vocalist Elizabeth Farnum is one of today’s most highly sought-after performers in the field of modern music. Widely known for her high level of musicianship, versatility and range, she has presented modern works in venues such as Lincoln Center, the Library of Congress, London’s Institute for Contemporary Art, the American Academy at Rome and the Concertgebouw in Amsterdam, collaborating with such composers as Samuel Adler, Dave Brubeck, Mario Davidovsky, John Harbison, Peter Schickele, Charles Wuorinen and John Zorn. Elizabeth maintains an interest in many different musical genres, and her various interests have led her to performances on Broadway, at the Metropolitan Opera, and to five continents on tour with diverse ensembles, including early music groups Pomerium and the Waverly Consort. In the oratorio and concert fields, Elizabeth has appeared as soloist with, among others, the Brooklyn Philharmonic, the American Symphony Orchestra, the Riverside Symphony, the La Jolla Symphony and Musica Sacra. A prolific studio artist, Elizabeth has been featured on over 30 recordings, four of which were nominated for Grammy awards.

Elizabeth has a keen interest in nature, animals, and the environment, and is a NY State-licensed wildlife rehabilitator. She lives on City Island, NY with her husband Ken, a keyboardist and piano technician, and their two kitties, Stuburt and Little Miss.
